

1st Grade: First graders will look at “American Gothic” by Grant Wood to understand that people pose so that artists can make portraits of them. Students will create a portrait of classmates in costume. Those who finish will complete unfinished projects.

2nd Grade: Second graders will look at “Goldfish” by Henri Matisse to understand the importance of shapes, lines, and color in an artwork. Students will create a crayon resist painting of a fish featuring shapes, lines, and color.

3rd Grade: Third graders will look at “The Scream” by Edvard Munch to understand how artists use lines to show emotion in artworks. Students will create a drawing of a face using a variety of lines to show emotion. Those who finish will complete unfinished projects.

4th Grade: Fourth graders will look at a Ming bowl to understand that a light source can emphasize the form of an object. Students will create a drawing that shows how light can suggest three-dimensional form.

5th Grade: Fifth graders will learn about monotone, analogous and complementary color schemes and then apply what they learn in a landscape painting.
